His mother had always taught him

His mother had always taught him not to ever think of himself as better than others. He'd tried to live by this motto. He never looked down on those who were less fortunate or who had less money than him. But the stupidity of the group of people he was talking to made him change his mind.

He was an expert but not in a discipline

He was an expert but not in a discipline that anyone could fully appreciate. He knew how to hold the cone just right so that the soft server ice-cream fell into it at the precise angle to form a perfect cone each and every time. It had taken years to perfect and he could now do it without even putting any thought behind it.

Dave watched as the forest burned up on the hill.

Dave watched as the forest burned up on the hill, only a few miles from her house. The car had been hastily packed and Marta was inside trying to round up the last of the pets. Dave went through his mental list of the most important papers and documents that they couldn't leave behind. He scolded himself for not having prepared these better in advance and hoped that he had remembered everything that was needed. He continued to wait for Marta to appear with the pets, but she still was nowhere to be seen.

All he wanted was a candy bar.

All he wanted was a candy bar. It didn't seem like a difficult request to comprehend, but the clerk remained frozen and didn't seem to want to honor the request. It might have had something to do with the gun pointed at his face.

The headache wouldn't go away. She's taken medicine but even that didn't help. The monstrous throbbing in her head continued. She had this happen to her only once before in her life and she realized that only one thing could be happening.

She was in a hurry.

She was in a hurry. Not the standard hurry when you're in a rush to get someplace, but a frantic hurry. The type of hurry where a few seconds could mean life or death. She raced down the road ignoring speed limits and weaving between cars. She was only a few minutes away when traffic came to a dead standstill on the road ahead.

Sometimes it's just better not to be seen. That's how Harry had always lived his life. He prided himself as being the fly on the wall and the fae that blended into the crowd. That's why he was so shocked that she noticed him.

What did I just see, that's amazing, oh sorry it's you!

Détail technique

I. Template

Créé à l'aide d'un template (html/bootstrap 5)

II. Package LARAVEL que j'ai utiliser

1 - Spatie-searchable : pour la recherche

III. Librairie React que j'ai utiliser

1 - Bootstrap 5 (pour le templating)

2 - react-router-dom pour les gestion des routes

3 - react-js-pagination pour la pagination

IV. Quelques notes

1 - C'est le premier projet que j'ai fait avec React typescript

Merci pour cette opportunité qui m'a donné la chance d'essayer React en typescript, je l'ai trouvé très intéressant. La chose qui m'a marqué le plus est que c'est super strict ! ce qui te force à écrire du bon code.

2 - J'ai pas mis en place un outil de full-text search avancé comme "elastic search" ou "laravel scout" par contrainte de temps .

3 - Je suis plutôt fière du résultat haha.

V. Documentation du code

a - Laravel

1 - les modèles (app/Models): vous trouvez la les 3 models utiliser dans l'application (User | Post | Comment), ils sont bien configurés et j'ai mis en place les relations eloquent que j'ai utilisé.

2 - les contrôleurs (app/Http/Controllers): j'ai mis toute la logique que j'ai fait dans un seul contrôleur que j'ai appelé ApiController

3 - les routes (routes/web) : tous les routes que j'ai fait pour l'application sont dans ce fichier

b - React

1 - le layout: est définie au niveau de App.tsx

2 - les routes: sont définie au niveau de App.tsx

3 - les composants: j'ai mis tous les composant dans le dossier components

4 - les types: j'ai mis les types que j'ai créé au niveau du dossier types, j'ai créé un type pour chacun des models (User | Post | Comment) et un autre type que j'ai utilisé pour la pagination

5 - tous les appel API je les ai mis dans un service que j'ai nommée ApiService qui est dans le dossier services
